Marc Fraser | Director of Security

The Hershey's Mill Security Department would like to remind pedestrians that they should utilize sidewalks, where available. Where sidewalks are unavailable, pedestrians should utilize the shoulder on the left side of the road – facing oncoming traffic, as this allows drivers and pedestrians alike a much better opportunity to see the other approaching. Also, if pedestrians will be walking around dusk or after dark, they should wear bright-colored clothing (reflective, if possible) and carry a flashlight, in order to make them more visible to motorists.

Photographer's note: Christine Hannafin of Troon was walking Chandler Drive, facing traffic as recommended, but by the time I got my camera ready she had passed. She so nicely offered to walk back a bit to help me out, and did. Such friendly folks here in The Mill!

Motorists are reminded to adhere to the 27 MPH speed limit along Chandler Drive and Mill Road, and drivers should always yield to pedestrians in crosswalks. Keep in mind that Hershey's Mill roadways also have several "blind spots" (small rises in the road, curves, and other areas of poor visibility). In these areas, pedestrians should use extra caution and be aware that drivers may have a difficult time seeing them. Just because a pedestrian notices the vehicle coming toward them does not mean that the driver has also seen the pedestrian. Both parties should always use caution when sharing the roadways within Hershey's Mill!

Lastly, all people (pedestrians and operators of automobiles, golf carts, bicycles, etc.) utilizing Hershey's Mill roadways and walkways are required to abide by the traffic rules and regulations of Hershey's Mill. Thank you!

A spoofed telephone call can be described as an unknown caller using a fake name and telephone phone number to contact you with intent to obtain your personal information so database. The problem is Nomorobo can't keep up with spoofed calls. These types of calls are generated very quickly, often changing their name and caller ID number with every call. Nomorobo is still effective but less so with the emergence of spoofed calls.

Spoofed Telephone Calls

Unfortunately some HM residents have been victimized by two types of calls losing thousands of dollars. Both types are out to separate you from your money and, worse yet, they may have your personal information if you have given it to them. One of the most common types revolves around computer security problems. You can see computer security intrusions by a pop-up window on your computer or by an incoming phone call with caller ID purportedly from Microsoft, Apple and other fake companies. No legitimate company will ever call you about your computer whether you're having a problem or not. The only exception could be that you called them first and asked to be called back. Computer intrusions (malware) can be detected and removed by Malwarebytes Free at <https://www.malwarebytes.com/>.

Years ago we used to answer almost all phone calls as there were hardly any scams out there. Now we need to be vigilant against scam calls. If you answer the phone beware that these people are very slick. They are experienced in dealing with others and are convincing in their dialog. My advice is to not answer any incoming calls if you don't recognize the name or number. If it's an important call, but you don't recognize it, let it go to your voice messaging system. The best part here is that incoming scam calls rarely if ever leave a message.

Now for more good news. The FCC has mandated all telecommunications companies (Verizon, Comcast, etc.) must implement techniques in 2019 to insure incoming calls come from legitimate sources, making sure that the calls are not spoofed. More on caller ID Spoofing at <https://www.fcc.gov/consumers/guides/spoofing-and-caller-id> and <https://www.washingtonexaminer.com/opinion/finally-the-fcc-is-cracking-down-on-caller-id-spoofing>.

For a discussion on this subject please attend the PC Club meeting at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, March 19 in the Community Center or other location designated if construction is underway in the Community Center.

Gail Habbersett | Eaton

During a visit to the HM Library in mid-November, I happened upon a guide describing wildflowers in our community. These guides are free and I learned that their creator lives among us. Being a nature lover myself, this knowledge prompted my interest in meeting the author and resident, Christine McCormick. After introducing myself over the phone, I sensed that my timing was not ideal. So after a brief conversation, we agreed to follow up in a few months when the hope of spring – and vigorous plants – would be on the horizon.

To my relief, Christine took the initiative of contacting me. The path to her home off Chandler Drive follows through a small woodland and, along the way, features an inviting stone-walled patio where you can just imagine neighbors and guests passing the time on warm, sunny days. On this day, however, we got to know each other in the comfort of Christine's home.

Christine's first home, I learned, was Conshohocken. Her father was one of 11 children; her mother one of seven. By comparison, Christine grew up with just one brother and one sister. Since most of her kith and kin remained in the area, large family reunions occurred annually. On her father's side alone, Christine and her siblings had 32 cousins. Imagine those parties! Christine started to share a story of bygone days when Cousin Ted stole a peach pie off the table, but the ending was never divulged. The family still gets together once a year and, in fact, her mother and sister live in nearby Lansdale.

Christine's parents made it quite clear that college would follow her graduation from Plymouth Whitemarsh High School. To that end, she took it upon herself to survey colleges. She ended up at Pembroke College in Brown University. Initially Christine pursued applied mathematics leading to a biology pre-med degree. During her junior and senior years at Pembroke though, the field of environmental science was blooming and her interest and aptitude in the subject caught the attention of a popular British geneticist professor in the program. Christine dropped pre-med and received her Biology Degree from Brown. Her second major was Russian; an interest stemming from her family heritage. She became fluent in the language and spent the summer following graduation in an exchange program in Leningrad. Christine shared several memorable observations of that experience. First, she'll always recall that she slept in a "horrible bed". Once in it, there was almost no way out! On a brighter note, Christine was 22 years old at the time, her dorm was across from the Hermitage, and she far preferred socializing in the evenings rather than sleeping since darkness never fell there. Her final comment applauded all of her extraordinary professors.

Following her Russian trip, Christine's British professor and his wife invited Christine to spend her last two weeks of summer in Liverpool with them. Her holiday ended abruptly with an attack of appendicitis. Despite this inconvenience, they invited her to work with them the following summer at Cambridge University.

Christine had already been accepted to a four-year Ph.D. program in ecology and evolutionary biology at Princeton. She feels her acceptance was, in a large part, due to the papers she, as an undergraduate, helped publish with her British professor. One significant incentive for Christine offered in this doctoral program was the two- to three-week research conducted every winter in the tropics. At the onset of her second year at Princeton, Christine chose an advisor whose research focused on tropical birds which related to her own developing thesis. She questioned why butterflies evolve with so many different patterns if the purpose is to be recognized as poisonous to predators.

Wouldn't just one pattern like that of the Monarch butterfly serve the purpose? Subsequent field studies of mimicry wings in butterflies led to her observations of hundreds of butterflies in the jungle while on two trips to Peru and others to Venezuela, Puerto Rico, Panama, and Gabon. In support of this work, she assembled an extensive collection of butterflies which she donated to the American Museum of Natural History in New York just before moving to Hershey's Mill. In the course of this research, she became more aware of the intricacies of nature.

All of Christine's education, including research opportunities in the states and abroad, prepared her for a full and exciting career in environmental consulting. Being a gifted team player and skilled organizer served her well throughout her work in New Jersey and later in Maryland. Christine retired in 2014 as Chief Scientist of EA Engineering, Science and Technology, Inc., a national environmental consulting firm. Notable in her 40 year career, she provided environmental analysis and planning input to development and operation of waste management facilities (Cape May County NJ Sewerage Systems, Fresh Kills Landfill on Staten Island); airports (Dulles, Logan, Newark); ports (Baltimore, NY)), and power plants; as well as hazardous waste site cleanup and National Park planning.

After retirement, Christine and her husband, Phil, of 30 years had hoped to collaborate as professional planners. Phil would supply the architectural expertise and Christine, obviously, the environmental. Sadly, this was a short-lived dream as Phil died prematurely. Thankfully, they enjoyed each other's company and many years together visiting ports on the East Coast aboard Magic, their 36-foot sailboat.

Interestingly, it was one of the 32 cousins who has lived in HM for a decade who convinced Christine and Phil to move here a couple years ago. And if ever you rest upon the bench on the putting green dedicated to Bill Sikorski, know that Christine's uncle was recognized for his friendship to many. But what is most remarkable is how Christine's home was built in 1974 with the principles of environmental planning that were key in that time and she herself did studies on spray irrigation of sewage effluent on golf courses – and that's exactly what we have here! The idea of 50% green space and 50% developed space fits her professional roots. In an early tour of HM, Christine commented, "It's a really green space!"

In light of that, it's no wonder that she aspires to reinvigorate our Audubon Sanctuary status with help from others here with a common interest in nature. Meanwhile, she will especially enjoy the convenience of her simplified home and life, the trails, the pool, and her neighbors.

She plans to periodically update her three-seasons of "Trail Walker's Pocket Guide to the Wildflowers of Hershey's Mill". Each guide includes a brief introduction, a trail map, a glossary, references, photographs, and descriptions of plants, insects, birds and animals observed over the course of a year. The pamphlet, inspired and published by her late husband, will hopefully continue to be available in the Hershey's Mill Library.

PET OF THE MONTH

Louise O'Brien | Springton

We would like to introduce you to HM Community TV's mascot, Miss Sadie Kope. Sadie is an all-black Dachshund-Spaniel mix who is a year and a half old. Sharon surprised Bob on his birthday with this little bundle of love when she was nine weeks old and has thrived in their loving care. Sharon, who volunteers at HM Guide and Digest, delights Louise and Gail when she brings Sadie to keep us company. Sadie has a boyfriend whose name is Bailey, a Golden-doodle who lives in Quaker. The hours at the Station go by much faster when we have Sadie to pet.

Hershey's Mill is a very friendly community for people and their pets.

1 A Simple Fold

When I was just a “bit” younger, my still very young niece showed me this puzzle. It seems so simple, but isn’t, so don’t flip out if it takes you awhile to solve it.

(At right) She says she has cut a large capital letter from a sheet of paper and given it a single fold. It’s easy to see that the letter could be an “L,” but that’s not the letter she cut out. What letter is it?

2 Two Identical Parts

Spatial reasoning your thing? This couldn’t be easier. For the rest of us ... ouch!

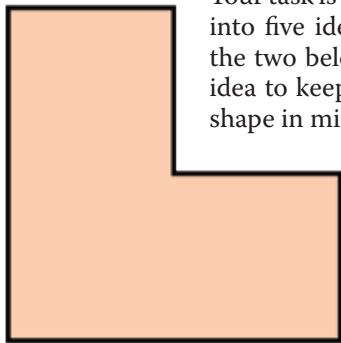

(At left) You need to divide the figure into two identical parts. The line won’t be complicated, but that doesn’t mean it’s straight either.

3 Divide And Conquer

And then there were more than two! Likely still an ouch.

Your task is to divide the figure at right into five identical parts; and each of the two below into four (never a bad idea to keep the initial shape in mind).

4 Face To The Right

Even the most engaged youngster gets a bit rambunctious when a restaurant is very slow in serving the food. My grandfather, who loved logic puzzles, always had a plan (and a puzzle) at the ready frustrated on occasion as well!

There are 13 toothpicks that make a happy dog facing to the left; with his wagging tail up. The challenge is to move just two so that he’s looking to the right, but with the tail still up. The initial attempt is often to move the two toothpicks as shown, but that makes for a tail-down (unhappy) dog; and we certainly can’t have that!

5 Out With The Onion

The first time I saw this puzzle, it was done with paper matches. My grandfather first encountered it when cocktails and smoking went hand-in-hand, and the matches were still around long after he had seen the light and given up smoking. Although I now suggest a version done with toothpicks and a breath mint, it’s nice to remember my grandfather with the original.

The four paper matches are arranged on a table to look like a martini glass; the match head inside indicating the onion of a Gibson cocktail. The puzzle is to move just two matches so that the glass is reformed, but the onion – which must stay where it is – winds up outside the glass. At the finish, the glass may be turned to the left or right, or even be upside down, but it must be exactly the same shape as before.

The career of W.C. Fields spanned the history of popular stage entertainment from the turn of the century to the end of World War II. Born in Delaware County and eternally linked in the popular imagination with Philadelphia, Fields apprenticed as a comic juggler in burlesque and vaudeville, and developed his image as a cantankerous comedian in the Ziegfeld Follies and in Broadway theater. In silent films, he was clever at pantomime, but in talkies he found his voice and became a star. Many critics believe he was one of the great comics of the 20th century.

Fields came from an English immigrant family. His mother and father lived in Philadelphia across Cobbs Creek from Delaware County. The couple ran a hotel bar, Arlington House at Main and Mill Streets in Darby. It was there in 1880 that Fields was born as William Claude Dukenfield, according to W.C. Fields, A Biography by James Curtis.

Fields' childhood, writes Curtis, was "vividly Dickensian." His father routinely beat him, and his mother had taken to drink. His education was limited, and he spent a lot of time on the streets, where he fell in with a gang of teenage thieves. He was saved from a life of crime when he taught himself to juggle. That craft earned him a few local engagements at $5 a week at various amusement parks on trolley lines in the region. At 17, he changed his last name to Fields and his career in burlesque was launched, doing bits as a tramp juggler in such places as Atlantic City.

"To conceal my youth, I added whiskers to my makeup," Fields is quoted as saying. Burlesque was where Fields and future stars Al Jolson, Bert Lahr and Sophie Tucker got their starts. At 20, Fields married Hattie Hughes, a burlesque showgirl. They toured together until she became pregnant with their son. She refused to continue on the tour. As a result, they grew apart, eventually separating. But because she was Catholic,

Fields grew up very poor in Philly, and worked jokes about his hometown into his comedy act. It is often said his epitaph is "Here Lies W.C. Fields. I Would Rather Be Living In Philadelphia." But that was a joke he made for a Vanity Fair article in 1925. His real, much less amusing, marker is shown at left.

Hughes would not grant him a divorce. She demanded that he support her and their son. By then he was making a comfortable salary of more than $125 a week and was able to send his wife and child a monthly check. Over time, the relationship became bitter. Fields never developed a fatherly relationship with his son. He filled the loneliness over the years with a number of mistresses.

His career continued into vaudeville, stage entertainment consisting of various singing, dancing and comedy acts. He toured nationally and internationally. This form of entertainment brought Fields into contact with such performers as Fannie Bryce, Eddie Cantor, Will Rogers and the Marx Brothers. It was competitive work, in which Fields became self-absorbed and petty with some of his fellow performers. He began to drink heavily. Yet it was during this time that he left the tramp juggler behind for a new comic image.

"The first thing I remember figuring out for myself was that I wanted to be a definite personality, so I developed a philosophy of my own," Fields is quoted as saying. Slowly, he developed the image of a curmudgeon con man who lied, cheated, and disliked children and small dogs. He delivered this character to his audience in a wry, drawling voice, the trademark that made him a star in movies.

By 1907, Fields made the big time when he became associated with the Ziegfeld Follies, musical revues filled with beautiful women, lavish sets and imaginative costumes. He starred in their annual productions through the 1920s. By then Fields' income was more than $1,000 a week. At the same time, he made one-reel silent films such as Pool Shark and appeared on Broadway in such plays as Poppy.

From 1927 to 1945, he was involved in movies, both in New York and Hollywood. During this time, he appeared in 50 films and wrote the screenplays for 15 of them. His voice and character were now in full play. He became a wealthy man but also an alcoholic. He drank on the set, where there was always a large pitcher of dry martinis. Although he had to be helped to his feet during filming and on occasions forgot his lines, he performed at his comedic best and his adlibs were often better than the script.

One of his notable performances in films was the role of Wilkins Micawber in George Cukor's 1935 classic, David Copperfield. The character was tailored for Fields' personality, and he won critical acclaim. Yet by 1945, his drinking had robbed him of his energy, and his film career was just about over. He continued to perform but on radio, where he had some success, particularly in his repartee with ventriloquist Edgar Bergen's Charlie McCarthy.

In 1946, sick with alcoholism, he entered a sanatorium. There, he was visited by an old friend, Eddie Cantor. "Eddie, I've often wondered how far I could have gone had I laid off the booze," Fields said. Shortly after W.C. Fields died at age 66.

Louise O'Brien | Springton

We can't think of March and not think of St. Patrick's Day and an Irish Pub. The first one that came to my mind was Kildare's in West Chester. Remembering that Gay Barry had done a review, degree from West Chester University and a doctorate in Chiropractic, his first love has always been the restaurant business. To qualify as a "publiscan," Magrogan attended and received a certification from the rigorous Guinness Irish Pub Operations Course.

Kildare's

An Authentic Irish Pub

I decided to rerun that review. Given its location, so close to West Chester University, I would imagine it will be very crowded with a college gang on March 17. Worth noting, they have added an Irish Breakfast to the menu for $13.99, served every day until 12 noon.

"May your troubles be less, your blessing be more, and nothing but happiness come through your door"

– an Irish blessing. In this month of March, most of us become Irish if only for just one day – so, "the top of the mornin' ta ya" and fáilte (welcome) to Kildare's.

"An authentic Irish experience," as Dave Magrogan, creator and owner of Kildare's, describes his six Irish pubs – the West Chester location being the first to open in 2003. Magrogan, from Brookhaven, Pa, grew up in kitchens – first as a dishwasher and then moving through every job in the restaurant business. Although he has a pre-med

The interior of Kildare's is truly authentic. Most of the mahogany wood, furnishings, bric-a-brac and artwork have come from Ireland representing Irish music, brewing traditions, literature, sports and history. In fact, one of the bars imported from Wexford is 110 years old. The pub, the menus and recipes were to early inhabitants; the Cottage – an extension of the home open to friends and neighbors; the Victorian – a nod to story, rhyme and song, donned with bookshelves; and the Brew, a tribute to the great brewing traditions of Irish whiskey, ale, lager and stout.

"May you live long, die happy, and rate a mansion in heaven."

You don't have to go "across the sea" to experience some hearty Celtic cuisine. All the chefs have been trained in Ireland. To your delight, you can find Guinness stew, Shepherds pie, bangers and mash, fish and chips, rosemary herb chicken with a Jameson's whiskey sauce, drunken steak made with a whiskey demi glace and beer battered onion rings or Jameson BBQ salmon.

Irish Blessing

May the road rise to meet you.
May the wind be always at your back.
May the sunshine warm upon your face,
And rains fall soft upon your fields.
And until we meet again,
May God hold you in the hollow of His hand.

oven-roasted vegetables, thin sliced roast beef or shrimp. Boxtys come with mashed potatoes and a vegetable. Hearty, indeed.

As well as the Celtic selections, there are a variety of other items on the menu, from Pub Burgers, Pubwiches, home made soups, salads and appetizers to tomato roasted garlic flatbread and tomato and onion toastie.

“May your troubles be few & as far apart as my grandmother’s teeth.”

Now this wouldn’t be a pub without spirits and there is a wide choice. Guinness draft, of course, in 10 concoctions, Guinness stout, Harp lager and Smithwick’s draft from Ireland and 18 other drafts from around the world. There are plenty of bottle beer choices, Scotch whisky and Irish whiskey to whet your whistle.

There is live Irish music on Saturday nights as well as some special feature every evening. On Sunday, one can enjoy a “skillet” brunch offering nine varieties and $5 Bloody O’Marys!!!

Kildare’s, located at 18-22 W. Gay Street in West Chester, is open seven days a week from 11:am to 2:am with an all-day menu. For information call 610-431-0770. We went for lunch and were delighted with the food, atmosphere and the service. Ask for Mike, if you can; he will make your experience even more pleasant.

NEWS FROM THE COMMUNITY CENTER

Sharon Kope | Robynwood

Have you been to the Community Center lately? Have you noticed the new room signs? Or observed the schedules posted on the Ardmore, Malvern and Paoli Room doors? We Included with your showcase ticket is admission to the Boutique Vendor Show at the Hershey's Mill Golf Club between 11 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. on the same day. It's presented by local retailers, who will donate a portion of their sales to the hospital. There will be imaginative raffle baskets available at are trying to make things clearer for all who use the building.

As of the writing of this article, the elevator has been put on hold due to the necessity for more information from contractors. Please stay tuned and remain open to whatever changes need to be made once construction starts.

SHOWCASE OF HOMES

Lynn Mander | Devonshire

This year's event will be on Thursday, May 9. Your $25 ticket will provide you with a self-guided tour of unique homes in the Mill that you can visit at your leisure between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. The profits from this event benefit the Paoli Hospital Foundation.

MONDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES

Lynne Urian | Merrifield

As we all slog through the final grasp of winter, Monday Night at the Movies will present a little breath of spring on Monday, March 18 at 7 p.m. in the main room of the Community Center with "Miss Potter" (PG, 2006). The film is based on the life of beloved children's author (and early feminist and conservationist) Beatrix Potter. Director Chris Noonan (of "Babe" fame) paints a lovingly portrait of this Victorian woman who defied the conventions of her time to publish her work and to become an outspoken champion of conserving the British countryside she loved so much. Rene Zellweger does a lovely job as Potter, and Ewan McGregor as her publisher (and romantic interest) is wonderful as well. This is a lovely, romantic little film, capturing the spirit of this fascinating and gently determined woman and it's filled with breathtakingly beautiful scenery of the British countryside.

Monday Night at the Movies is a perfect way to chase away the winter blues!

If you'd like more information, please call Lynne Urian at _____, or email _____

Hoping to "see you at the movies!"

COMMUNITY GARDENS

Ed Sweeney | Yardley

Last year was difficult and challenging for HM gardeners. Mother Nature was way too generous with rain! Hopefully, in the upcoming growing season, we will experience more balanced weather conditions and will experiment with some shortcuts and Home Depot discounts revealed to us by Bill Reynolds.

By now you've placed your Burpee catalog order and probably started your seedlings under a lamp. If you need an outlet for your extra seedlings, Bonalyn, Terry and Bill agreed to host our Second Annual Seed and Plant Exchange this year on May 1 – mark your calendars!

Good news for Prius owners and other folks who found the speed bumps on the garden road too high. Jim and Ed report that the problem is fixed and will be graded this spring at this new level.

Get ready to plant your onions!

They also offer specialty coffees, teas and cold drinks at the on-site café which adults are welcome to enjoy throughout the playground. Shelley, the grandkids, and I had a super time together for 2 ½ hours. In all that time, both children freely moved from one imaginative center to another, never running out of new activities to try. I love Casita's slogan, “Where the little ones can play and the parents can stay”. If you need further con-

What do you do with little people when there's nothing but rain in the forecast? Recently, during a visit from our grown daughter, Shelley, and her two-year old son and four-year old daughter, it poured. Shelley did the only wise thing. She googled “activities for kids in West Chester”. She discovered Lulu's Casita, an indoor children's center, is open every day for casual, drop in play. expanded consciousness to the aging process.

During this four-week course, we will first recognize, at a deeper level, our traditional attitudes toward aging and then move toward expanding our thinking in more positive ways. Might we even have the courage to consider some “exciting” possibilities about aging?

Some of the topics to be covered are these: How do negative attitudes about aging become self-fulfilling prophecies and what are new possibilities? How might we deal with physical changes in more positive ways? What do you want your legacy to be? These four sessions will be held 7-9 p.m. at an HM location (to be decided) on these dates: March 18 and 25, April 1 and 8. Please don’t sign up unless you can attend all sessions. This course will be taught by Hershey’s Mill resident Bonalyn Mosteller, Ed.D. She has previously taught other HM adult-learning courses. If you have questions or want to register, feel free to contact her, Registration deadline is March 15. Fee: donation to cover costs of materials.

RAINBOW LIMOUSINE

Despite a common grape-vine rumor circulating, it should be clarified that Rainbow Limousine (formerly Rainbow Cab and Limousine,) has not ceased operations, nor has it changed ownership. Rainbow, owned by Gibbs Tolsdorf since 2003, continues to provide trips between Hershey's Mill and the Philadelphia airport, seven days a week.

Rainbow Limousine now offers "luxury chauffeured services," according to their newly vamped website at www.rainbowlimosvc.com. This means that residents can now choose to travel in a private black sedan or SUV, with a certified chauffeur at the helm. They serve PHL, JFK, EWR, BWI, and all the cruise terminals on the east coast. The approximate cost one way from HM to Phila. International Airport is $115 including gratuity. Call 610-696-6060. There is a 5% discount if you use the website to reserve service.

You can also bring any jewelry you need fitted or repaired and receive a quote from IGC. Some repairs can be done while you wait.

Fred Auger | Ashton

We are always very proud when one of our many Hershey's Mill Woodshop (HMW) women members completes a unique woodcraft project.

Denise Buccì with her handmade stepstool

Please meet Denise Buccì, of Brighton Village, an active HMW member who also volunteers her time for Woodshop cleaning and committee representation. A month or so ago, Denise chose to undertake a unique stepstool construction. This was no ordinary stepstool! The stepstool design incorporated sweeping wavelike form with mortised tenon steps and a wide handle all constructed from rough white oak lumber. With her customary enthusiastic bright smile, Denise proposed her new project. There was a caveat. Denise asked me, "Fred, do you think I can do this and can I get some help with my project"? My response was, "Absolutely Denise. Here's how I would approach your project".

As a graduate of the Woodshop's basic wood-working class conducted by masters, Mark Gross and Arnold Auger, Denise had all of the of the basic wood working requirements to undertake such a novel and elegant stepstool. So the work began!

all, a drawing evolved into the stool's sidewall template. Denise was pleased with results. So were Denise's woodshop consultants! Now the template had to be transferred to the white oak material.

With great care and attention to detail, Denise transferred her luan plywood sidewall template to the prepared oak blank. Once completed, it was now the band saw that would separate the sidewalls from scrap. Once completed, the new sidewall became the template for the second sidewall. Now that the sidewalls were completed. The steps and handle were next.

Compared to the sidewall construction process, the two steps were easy. However, Denise chose to mortar the sidewalls, the best approach to secure the steps to the support walls. This was tricky! Mortising both sidewalls had to be exact and near perfect. Otherwise, the steps would resemble something from, "Cat in the Hat" stairways, crooked and out of proportion. With counsel from woodshop members the mortising process was perfect. Both steps and handle fit their mortised joints.

All of the pieces were finished and ready for assembly. With great patience and attention to detail, the unique stepstool took form. After some final sanding, edge rounding and layers of polyurethane finish, the magnificent stepstool was now complete.

Denise's wonderful smile stands testimony to a job well done. The finished product will always stand testimony to Denise's woodcraft abilities. We invite more community women to participate in our magnificent Hershey's Mill woodshop amenity. You have the skills! Come join us and share your knowledge. We woodshop members have much to share with you!

A Yorkie named Max, a rolling river in Bucks County, a thatched cottage...these serve as the inspiration for the artists (with or without formal training) who meet every Wednesday from 12 p.m. to 3 p.m. in the Cove. Each member of the art group enjoys being creative in different ways. One such member is Sarah Hamilton. Sara, the contact person for the art group, has had formal art education taking classes at the Studio Friday Art Group in Ocean City, New Jersey; the Wayne Art Center; the Mainline Art Center; and Community Art Center in Wallingford. She continues her training during weekly art instruction with Ana McCormick at the Administration Gallery and Studio in Newtown Square. She has exhibited and sold paintings. She uses acrylics and oil in her home studio. She is currently working on two projects simultaneously; a brown and white floral composition, and a bridge scene from France. Even though Sara has numerous places to paint, she has been coming to the art group for over three years. She, like many of the other members, relishes the collegial atmosphere and the chance to learn from others. She says she finds it inspiring to see the growth in the work of the other club members and gets new ideas each week as the members share their individual projects. The art club welcomes new members who want the opportunity to expand their skills through their relationships with others.

ALZHEIMER'S/DEMENTIA SUPPORT GROUP

Robert Hughes | Franklin

Like cancer, there are many types of dementia with Alzheimer's disease accounting for more than 50% of the cases. Only a few of these cases are curable or manageable and the rest leads to premature death. Being a caregiver of a loved one is very stressful and could result in a condition called "caregiver burnout." A major purpose/hope of the support group is to reduce this stress.

The beginning caregiver suffers from a lack of knowledge about the disease and its many ramifications. These include and are often discussed: cost of care, where and how to get help, early signs of dementia, typical deterioration of loved one's health, hospice care, doctors, and drugs. Golf Tip

By definition, a chip is a shot made from around the green where the objective is to fly the ball just a few feet onto or just short of the green, allowing the ball to roll out to the pin. You are not trying to control this shot with trajectory or spin. The proper setup should have your weight slightly toward your front foot, your stance narrow and slightly open, and the ball played off your back foot. The proper club for this shot depends solely on the distance needed from your intended landing spot to the hole. The stroke itself should be nothing more than your putting stroke, but on a slightly downward angle into the ball because of your setup. Practice this shot using all your lofted clubs, taking note how far each one allows the ball to roll out.

AMERICAN DREAM

As told by Tam Hguyen

Part 3 – Tam's story of the American dream picks up from the February Guide and Digest.

I am proud to have added a small amount of paint to the picture of the American Dream, making it brighter and brighter.

Passing through many economic, social and political crises in the past, the American dream has lasted from the day that the nation was created until the present time. Indeed, in the winter of 1945, in his final Inaugural Address, President Roosevelt said: "American power and prosperity has reached epic heights". These ideas also had been expressed by John Adams; Americans of the post-war era were living better, richer and happier lives.

In addition, President Barack Obama, a black man, was reelected for a second term in 2013. This reality is proof of the America dream, and also it is a valuable lesson for mankind especially for people of color who are living in America, because despite their different skin color, all citizens are equal.

America is truly a land of opportunity. Work hard and you will prosper. This premise has nurtured the people since the country was created and lasts until today.

In the beginning, explorers in the 16th and 17th centuries sought riches, and religious dissenters came seeking freedom of worship (Gold and God or God and Gold). British broke with England to come here and form a new society with the belief that a man's natural right included "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness".

Since the day this nation was created and passing through generations, many waves of immigration came from all over the world, following previous people to search for prosperity here, and they found it.

Besides the hard work, of course, their success depended on other factors such as the abundance of natural resources, fair and equal justice, and especially the American open education system. Individual talent was exploited at all levels of school, English as a second language classes for new immigrants

HMSG CLUB NEWS

Don Evons | Princeton

On May 22 and 23, the HMSG has a spring event planned for “everyone” in The Mill. This means everyone. For those who are not familiar with the HMSG, it is the sports activity group that supports over 10 sporting activities here in The Mill. We are sponsoring our first EXPO as a way to introduce our activities, show what is new for 2019 and how to get involved. If you are a member or already involved “BRING A FRIEND”. If not come and learn about us. What is especially exciting is showcasing things to do with your grandchildren.

Set aside the afternoon of MAY 22 now.

HMSG MEMBERSHIP

Judy Dale | Jefferson

It's almost spring! Now is the time to play, indoors or outdoors! But it takes more than just playing. The HMSG is focused on increasing membership in 2019. Why join? The Group helps finance capital improvements, maintenance and equipment. Plus it is an easy way to get involve and socialize! The Master Association is very helpful, but financial support from our players is vital. This year “spring” for a donation. May 22 and 23 will be our “Bring a Friend” Expo! Watch for additional information next month.

BIKE CLUB

Jeff Smith | Princeton

The days are getting noticeably longer and we will soon be liberating our bikes from the recesses of our garages and basements, cleaning them, inflating the

More importantly, the Constitution of America is the first written constitution in world history that was completed by people who owned private property.

It is based on the ideal of democracy, the first nation formed as a republic, a federal system with the office of President and 3 separate branches that were elected by citizens with a limited term for leadership. That structure guaranteed the practice of democracy and orderly issued policies, avoiding the overuse of power. The strength of this model is demonstrated by the fact that America has never had a coup d'état since the day this country was created (1776).

It is very rare among large countries in the world to have such a stable political system and being able to satisfy their people like that.

Even though the US Constitution is only about more than 240 years old, America still became the world leader in economy and many other areas.

Conclusion

Whether the American Dream survives or not depends on the role of government and the consciousness of the people. On one hand, government always provides the opportunity for people to promote and develop new ideas and innovations; on other hand, people should know how to work hard in order to prosper and live a better life. What a wish.

TDN.

of the distance, type of terrain, surface and interesting sights along the way. One of the highlights last year was putting our bikes on an excursion train in the town of Jim Thorp, Pennsylvania for a 20-mile trip north along the Lehigh River and then pedaling mostly downhill back to Jim Thorp. We hope to do that again this year. Another favorite ride is the Schuylkill River Trail that parallels the Schuylkill River from Valley Forge into center city Philadelphia. We typically only ride a portion of the trail and take a lunch break at one of the eateries along the way. The Chester Valley Trail is an easily accessible rail trail right in our backyard. ### ARE YOU GETTING MORE FORGETFUL?

- Are you between the ages of 50 and 85?
- Do you find it harder to think, and to remember things over the last year?
- Are you forgetting recent events, but have no difficulty with events from long ago?
- Do people say that you repeat the same stories or ask the same question over and over?
- Do you have difficulty following complex conversations, or the story line in a book or movie?

These could be symptoms of Mild Cognitive Impairment or early Alzheimer's Disease.

Keystone Clinical Studies conducts free Memory Screenings, which could help you understand your symptoms. Memory screenings typically last about a half hour and include clinical testing and discussion of results. If you or someone you know is concerned about their memory, please call our office to schedule a memory screening.

Isn't it amazing? Outdoor sports at The Mill have gotten very quiet recently with one exception. If you're praise the Lord). What happened to Wednesday, you ask? There's a popular difference in our schedule on Wednesdays. We play from 5-7 p.m. to accommodate our once a month pickleball and pizza socials, plus give the still-employed Mill folks a break.

walking Bowser down past the pool/Cove parking lot from 1-3 p.m. on any clear day this winter, you will hear the distinctive sound we love...the pock, pock, pocking of the pickleballs. The other Mill residents were certain that the only winter activities in these environs would be table tennis (ping pong), platform tennis or indoor (regular) tennis off site on rented courts. However, there they are, the hardy souls bundled up to be sure, but enjoying this game with the funny name and fabulous growth here and around the world.

Now the much anticipated spring activities will soon be upon us with our opening pickleball clinic scheduled for Saturday, April 27 at 9 a.m., plus the Sports Group Expo fair and social less than a month later. Also in April, the hours for pickleball play will be moved to 9:30-11:30 a.m. on Saturday, and from 2-4 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday. Sundays are remind Mill residents and their accompanied guests that the above hours are reserved on the Sports Group website (ROCO) for the purpose of arranging games. This is a walk-on activity, so that new players need only identify themselves, and one of the experienced players will help them get started.

Good news...the balls and rackets are NO CHARGE items located at what we refer to as the GIMME SHELTER and locker beside the courts.

What about winter spectator pickleball, you ask? We use our Troon Village internet whiz, George Madden, and the pickleball portion of his own website with the link <https://www.gmadden33.com>. He has the national championships at places like Naples, FL and Indian Wells, CA set up for viewing at your leisure. The instruction portion of the site should be helpful, as well.

See you at the courts!

RECIPES

If you don't think of seafood when you think of Ireland, you don't know Ireland! These two favorite recipes, from County Donegal, are sure to make your St. Patrick's Day special. We splurge on good Irish butter for both, and suggest you do too.

Creamy Mussel Soup

2 cups dry white wine
8 tablespoons chopped shallots
1 clove garlic, smashed
8 parsley sprigs, 1 bay leaf, and ½ teaspoon fresh thyme leaves
Pinch of saffron
¼ teaspoon ground white pepper
8-10 pounds mussels, scrubbed
5 tablespoons butter
½ cup flour
3½ cups whole milk
Heavy cream
Sea salt
Croutons and chopped fresh parsley for garnish

In a saucepan, combine wine, shallots, garlic, herbs, saffron, and pepper; then add mussels, cover, and steam until mussels open. While mussels steam, and in a second saucepan, cook the butter and flour to create a medium roux; stirring often. Simultaneously, heat milk in a microwave until nearly boiling. Pour mussels and liquids through a fine colander, reserving all liquid; then remove mussels from the shells (discard shells, and also any unopened mussels). Return strained liquid to the saucepan and boil it over high heat until reduced by about a quarter. Transfer this liquid to the roux saucepan, and whisk together; then whisk in the hot milk. Adjust the milk if needed to obtain desired thickness, keeping in mind it will thin a bit more once cream is added. Just before serving, add the shelled mussels and heavy cream (to taste and desired thickness); and season with sea salt (may take only a small amount dependant on the liquid from the mussels). Serve with garnish.

Scallops with Mushrooms

2 pounds unpeeled russet potatoes
1 cup whole milk, 2 egg yolks, and
3 tablespoons butter
12 sea scallops
Dry white wine, and water
1¼ cups half and half
2 tablespoons butter
¾ cup chopped shallots
2 cups sliced mushrooms
3 tablespoons flour
Sea salt and ground white pepper
¾ cup grated aged cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley

Boil the potatoes in well-salted water until easily pierced with a knife. Remove from water and remove skins while hot, then beat together with the milk, egg yolks, and butter until light and fluffy. Cover and keep warm. Put the scallops in a saucepan, then cover with a mixture of half wine and water. Poach scallops about 5 minutes, then remove them and reduce the remaining liquid until it's about 1¼ cups. Add the half and half and simmer at least 5 minutes. In a separate saucepan, sweat the shallots in the butter until soft, then add the mushrooms and cook another 4 minutes, then add the flour and cook, stirring, for another 1 minute. Add and stir in the hot scallop, wine, and half and half liquid. Season as desired. Cut the scallops into 3 pieces each, and add to the sauce with half the cheese and all the parsley. In an oven-safe serving dish, pipe the prepared potatoes around the edge of the dish, fill the center with the scallops in sauce, and sprinkle the remaining cheese on top. Place under broiler until top is bubbling and lightly browned.
